While studying abroad, I went to watch the first NBA game in my life. I am a Lakers fan and this

I went to watch the game on Christmas Day. Although the tickets are expensive, they are still very memorable. I saw it.

My favorite star LeBron James dunks on the court and then domineering dominance. This game made me watch very refreshing. Sure enough, the atmosphere and splendor of the NBA game is still a big gap compared with the domestic professional basketball team in Taiwan. At that time, I also watched the football game with a Japanese friend. Although the game was lost at the end, it was really exciting. I think that when you go to the United States, you should go to these games. Whether it is NBA or MLB, you should go there once to experience the atmosphere of their watching games.

This is the extreme sport that I most want to challenge when I was in San Diego. It is called skydiving. It is very exciting and fun, and the scenery above is beautiful. You can see the whole of San Diego and Mexico, but to play this, you must sign the status of life and death. Although the weather looks good some day when you go skydiving, it is actually very cold when you are sitting on the plane, and then when you jump from the plane, the heart beats super fast.

In the middle, you can always watch the scenery. This skydiving activity is really an extreme sport worth challenging in life.
